Hemochromatosis

CT is less sensitive than MRI but can demonstrate increased iron if it is severe.

Patients with increased hepatic iron demonstrate diffuse increased attenuation of the liver, usually greater than 75 Hounsfield units on noncontrast examination.

Other abnormalities that can cause increased attenuation of the liver on CT include: amiodarone toxicity, glycogen storage disease, gold therapy, and Wilson disease.

ALF: Definition

- The most widely accepted definition of ALF:
- Coagulation abnormality, usually an INR >1.5, and any degree of mental alteration (encephalopathy) without preexisting cirrhosis and with an illness of <26 weeks duration.

- AASLD Position Paper: The Management of Acute Liver Failure: Update 2011
- William M. Lee, MD, Anne M. Larson, MD, and R. Todd Stravitz, MD

Mnemonic for causes of acute liver failure: The ABCs

A	Acetaminophen, hepatitis A, autoimmune hepatitis, Amanita phalloides (mushroom poisoning), adenovirus
B	Hepatitis B, Budd-Chiari syndrome
C	Cryptogenic, hepatitis C, CMV
D	Hepatitis D, drugs and toxins
E	Hepatitis E, EBV
F	Fatty infiltration - acute fatty liver of pregnancy, Reye's syndrome
G	Genetic - Wilson disease
H	Hypoperfusion (ischemic hepatitis, SOS, sepsis), HELLP syndrome, HSV, heat stroke, hepatectomy, hemophagocytic lymphohistiocytosis
I	Infiltration by tumor

Stages of Cirrhosis

The price you pay
stages of alcohol-induced liver damage

Fatty Liver	Liver Fibrosis	Cirrhosis
Deposits of fat causes liver enlargement.	Scar tissue forms.	Growth of connective tissue destroys liver cells.
Strict abstinence can lead to a full recovery.	Recovery is possible, but scar tissue remains.	The damage is irreversible.
